Even the very best professional gamblers will endure losing runs, so it is important to simply follow our recommendations. We will have sequences of winners but also losing runs, this should not affect how you bet at all.

When the 2024 Ballon d'Or nominees were revealed in the autumn, Mohamed Salah was the only Liverpool player on the list. While Alisson Becker deserved to be included (if not in the Ballon d'Or stakes, certainly in the running for the Yashin Trophy) after his individual heroics, it certainly wasn't a surprise to see so little Anfield representation.

After all, Jürgen Klopp's side had endured a miserable 2024/23 season, failing to qualify for the Champions League and exiting the competition at the round of 16 stage with a heavy 6-2 aggregate defeat to Real Madrid. While these are ostensibly individual awards, they are almost always viewed through the prism of collective accomplishment, and so Liverpool's broader failures were costly for some of its better players.

On Wednesday, the shortlist was released for another of football's most prestigious prizes — a place in the FIFPro World XI — and again only one Liverpool player made the cut. This time, it was Virgil van Dijk rather than Salah.

The first thing to understand here is that, while it's ostensibly a calendar year award, the best XI is in practice determined by the last complete season. That's why, for instance, Kevin De Bruyne has been nominated, despite hardly kicking a ball since June because of injury.

The second is that, unlike other awards, this one is solely in the hands of the players, rather than journalists, pundits or pundits. According to FIFPro, nearly 22,000 men's players cast their votes for this year's team.

You can't dispute most of the names on the list of attackers. Erling Haaland shattered records in firing Manchester City to the treble, Lionel Messi produced an all-time great World Cup campaign to lead Argentina to glory, and Kylian Mbappé combined a spectacular performance in the final with 41 goals at club level. Elsewhere, Karim Benzema bagged 31 goals for Real Madrid, Harry Kane got 32 for Spurs and Vinícius Jr. mixed 23 goals with 21 assists.

Salah, meanwhile, netted 30 and set up 16 more in all competitions, and clearly, based on Kane's involvement after a season in which Spurs finished eighth, collective woes aren't an automatic disqualifier. Still, you wouldn't feel too aggrieved if any of the other forwards claimed the last spot alongside surefire inclusions Haaland and Messi. The real problem is that Salah wasn't nominated at all.

The one player who doesn't have remotely as strong a case is Cristiano Ronaldo, who scored three goals in 16 appearances for Manchester United before having his contract terminated when he furiously spoke out against the club. He'd already made his last appearance for the Red Devils when he traveled to the World Cup, where he failed to score from open play and lost his place in the starting line-up for the knockout stages.

His subsequent return of 14 goals in 19 games for Saudi Pro League side Al-Nassr was impressive on paper but, as Twenty First Group analyst Aurel Nazmiu noted at the time, that division sat somewhere between League One and League Two in quality. That has not substantially changed since and Ronaldo's inclusion is therefore baffling.

On that basis, it's egregious that Ronaldo features on the shortlist, and it's pretty clear that he's only there on the basis of his pre-existing global reputation. Some would question how much all of this really matters compared to team success, and whether Liverpool supporters should really care. Jürgen Klopp and those that matter, after all, already know exactly what the Egyptian offers. But what this tells us is that, despite establishing himself as one of the greatest players in Premier League history and one of the best of the modern era, Salah remains underrated, both by the media and, as it turns out, his peers. In the second half of the season, once he returns from AFCON, he can continue to show exactly why that is unfair.
