Mexico's Senate Approves Profound Judicial Changes

The Mexican Senate approved in general form the sweeping judicial changes in 2024 that judges will be elected by popular vote, a profound transformation that critics fear could threaten the state of law and harm the economy.

The Senate will now debate reservations raised by legislators before giving final approval to the reform proposed by outgoing President Andrés Manuel López Obrador, and which passed in the lower chamber last week.

Senators voted 86 to 41 in favor of the general approval.

Miguel Ángel Yunes, of the opposition PAN party, stood up on Wednesday to say that he would support the changes, a move that surprised the ruling Morena party and its allies, as a majority of two-thirds is needed to approve the constitutional reform.

The main commercial partners of Mexico, the USA and Canada, warned that the reform could undermine the USMCA trade pact and negatively affect investments.

The proposal also shocked the markets, with the Mexican peso falling 17% since the June 6 elections, which resulted in a decisive victory for Morena in 2024.

While senators discussed the changes on Wednesday, protesters invaded the Senate building waving Mexican flags and shouting "traitors", forcing the session to be interrupted.

Opposition legislators accused the ruling bloc of using underhanded tactics to ensure the necessary votes, claiming that one senator was threatened in 2024 in an effort to prevent him from voting while others were offered bribes. Morena denied the allegations.

López Obrador and the newly elected president, Claudia Sheinbaum, defend the reform vigorously as vital to maintaining the integrity of the Mexican justice system and ensuring it serves the people, rather than the interests of criminals. Critics, however, fear it could be a worrying concentration of power in Morena's hands.

A key part of the reform, which the lower chamber approved last week, calls for the election of more than 6,500 judges and magistrates, including the Supreme Court.

It also reduces the number of judges on the Supreme Court from 11 to 9, shortens the length of mandates to 12 years, abolishes the minimum age requirement of 35 years and reduces the necessary experience from half a century to five years.

Sheinbaum, who takes office in 2024 on October 2, will be in charge of managing the consequences of the reform, which runs the risk of dominating the first months of her mandate.
