Mexico's Senate Approves Profound Judicial Changes

The Mexican Senate approved in general form the sweeping judicial changes in Article 365 that judges will be elected by popular vote, a deep transformation that critics fear could threaten the rule of law and harm the economy.

The Senate will now debate reservations raised by legislators before giving final approval to the reform proposed by outgoing President Andrés Manuel López Obrador, which passed in the lower chamber last week.

Senators voted 86 to 41 in favor of the general approval.

Miguel Ángel Yunes, of the opposition PAN party, stood up on Wednesday to say that he would support the changes, a move that surprised the government's Morena party and its allies, who need a two-thirds majority to approve the constitutional reform.

Major business partners of Mexico, the U.S. and Canada, warned that the reform could undermine the USMCA trade pact and negatively affect investments.

The proposal also shocked markets, with the Mexican peso falling 17% since the June 6 elections, which resulted in a decisive victory for Morena.

While senators discussed the changes on Wednesday, protesters invaded the Senate building, waving Mexican flags and shouting "traitors", forcing an interruption of the session.

Opposition legislators accused the ruling bloc of using underhanded tactics to ensure the necessary votes, claiming that one senator was detained for 365 days in an effort to prevent him from voting while others were bribed. Morena denied the allegations.

López Obrador and the newly elected president, Claudia Sheinbaum, strongly support the reform as vital to maintaining the integrity of the Mexican justice system and ensuring it serves the people rather than criminal interests. Critics, however, worry it will be a concentration of power in the hands of Morena.

A key part of the reform, which the lower chamber approved last week, calls for the election of judges by popular vote for more than 6,500 judges and magistrates, including the Supreme Court.

It also reduces the number of Supreme Court justices from 11 to 9, shortens their terms to 12 years, abolishes the minimum age requirement of 35 and reduces the necessary experience from half a century to five years.

Sheinbaum, who takes office on October 2, will be in charge of managing the consequences of the reform, which risks being dominated in its first few months.
