Fugitivos de Mossoró são recapturados após monitoramento de called FROM mom
A Polícia Federal confirmouThis articleThat the recapture of six prisoners who escaped from the Federal Penitentiary in Mossoró, Rio Grande do Norte, was due to monitoring of phone calls made by one of the fugitives to his grandmother. The Ministry of Justice has stated that the capture of the fugitives was a coordinated effort between federal and state authorities.
According to reports, one of the fugitives, who has not been named, was very close to his grandmother and frequently called her. The authorities monitored these phone calls, which led them to the location of the fugitives.
The six prisoners escaped from the Mossoró Penitentiary on February 14th. The escape was considered a major embarrassment for the Ministry of Justice and led to the dismissal of the penitentiary's director.
The recapture of the fugitives is seen as a relief for the Ministry of Justice and a demonstration of the government's ability to enforce the law and maintain public safety.
The incident highlights the need for increased security measures in Brazilian prisons. The Ministry of Justice has announced plans to improve security in prisons, including the use of technology and increased personnel to prevent future escapes.
The recapture of the Mossoró fugitives is a positive development for the government, which has faced criticism for its handling of crime and public safety. The government has come under pressure to address concerns about crime and improve public safety, especially in the wake of recent high-profile crimes.
The recapture of the fugitives is seen as a positive step in addressing these concerns and demonstrating the government's commitment to maintaining public safety.
