Esports betting in 2024

Esports betting is largely done on the top-flight leagues and tournaments surrounding professional video gaming. For instance you might find betting on the final stages of a League of Legends tournament, but you won't find any markets on the online qualifying. This is because esports handicapping is still a relatively young game, and the depth of the player pools means new esports stars are emerging all the time. Our esports betting section will highlight the top five esports in January, 2024.

Esports betting sites in 2024

The team here at Esportbet want to make it as easy and simple as possible for newcomers and experienced bettors who want to bet on eSports but don't want to risk real money until they're thoroughly familiar with the fundamentals and the betting markets currently available at online sportsbooks. We do this by breaking down the most important aspects of safe and successful online betting. We take a look at several factors, including reputation, esports bonus offers and promotions, banking options, live esports betting and of course, the esports bet types available. These are the factors we use when reviewing and testing the various top-rated esports betting sites servicing fans around the world, to ensure they get a fair rating and readers get an accurate assessment of what esports bookmakers have to offer.

Reputation and security

The reputation of the esports betting operator is the first thing we verify with each and every sportsbook we recommend to readers on this site. Whether they're globally renowned brands or specialised bookmakers, we test all of their services, including the bonuses and promotions they offer – as fellow bettors and fans of esports. We take into account the jurisdictions which issued their sports betting licenses, the watchdogs which audit them as fair and responsible, and the user reviews of existing members who back them up as trustworthy betting sites with the best value, and who pay out accordingly and on-time.

Bonuses, promotions & VIP rewards The esports betting sites will often have sign up bonus offer available. This is another important aspect when choosing an online esports sportsbook. Does the esports betting operator give ample welcome bonuses for new player sign-ups? Do they match your real money deposits with bonus cash, so you can maximise your wagering? Do they grant free bets? What about cashback promos and VIP rewards programs for loyal members? These sorts of bonuses are regular fixtures in the regular casino and sports betting world, so it's only fair to want to recommend the best for esports bettors. Our esports betting reviews will always highlight each bookmaker's sign up bonus and ongoing promotions.

Funding your betting account One of the most important aspects of safely betting online is funding your account and the good news is that bookie payments have never been so accessible. Most betting sites will accept common forms of payment like Visa credit and debit, Mastercard credit and debit and popular web wallets like Paypal and Neteller. However the online betting payment options available to you, will largely depend on where you are in the world. For instance, it's common to find Paypal at UK betting sites, but you are less likely to find it at a bookie based out of Curacao.

Payments types found at betting sites: Apple Pay American Express Click To Pay Google Pay Litecoin Visa Credit card Debit card EzeeWallet JCB iDebit Paypal Neteller Ethereum Astropay Bitcoin NetBanking POLi Skrill Giropay Mastercard Pay by Bank app PayID Paysafecard Pix Payments SEPA Direct Debit Sofort YooMoney ecoPayz Credit and debit cards with MasterCard and Visa are highly recommended to use and are universally offered across all major esports sportsbooks we recommend due to their proven in-built security systems. Other online banking services such as Neteller and Skrill are great to use, and it's a big plus if we see them offered by an eSports betting site. Good old fashioned wire transfers directly sent from your Internet banking account or checking account are widely accepted, and your financial institution's encryption technology and own security tend to make it an easy decision to use. We consider it a major bonus if alternative payment methods such as bitcoin are supported at eSports betting sites; it currently isn't widely available at the major sportsbooks, but smaller outfits currently allow BTC deposits and it's only a matter of time before it catches on.

Esport bet types What is available for esports bettors is the final consideration. Match betting is the standard form of wagering on eSports available at most sites, and involves placing a bet on the outcome of an event – the winning player or team. Most major international sportsbooks offer a limited range of markets, but sites like Bet365, BetEasy, Pinnacle and William Hill are slowly leading the charge for more exciting betting options on the most popular games, particularly CS2, League of Legends and Dota 2. In-play live betting is offered at some sportsbooks like Pinnacle, and allow players to place bets on more specialised outcomes while the match is ongoing. Bet365 and BetEasy also offer futures markets and other options, such as betting on the individual map winners, correct total map score, region of the winners, first to markets, and handicaps – in addition to head-to-head and outright markets. Learn all the esports betting and gaming terminology here.

Best eSports odds Obviously one of the most important things when betting on any sport is what prices you can secure. Esports betting is no different, with many esports sportsbooks offering markets on the same events. While most esports odds will be pretty similar, if you are vigilant in checking odds before placing your bets, you will sometimes find a bookie that has priced a market differently to their competitor. If you find these outliers in esports odds it can make a huge difference to either walking away a winner, or limping home with your tail between your legs. Our esports betting reviews will always give you an indication on how each site's odds stack up against their competitors.

Games available to bet on

Games is the most obvious factor to consider when choosing your preferred online betting site. Dota 2, CS2, League of Legends and Starcraft are guaranteed to have betting markets due to their massive popularity, but it's always good to have variety. Many of the betting sites we recommend are beginning to offer new markets from rising stars in the eSports scene in addition to the most popular esports in the world. Check out our guides to all the most popular esports.

Bet on esports

online via mobile

Mobile esports betting is probably the most common form of online wagering in 2024, with 100s of betting sites having apps available to download. These apps are on top of outstanding browser-based mobile esports betting sites. No doubt this mobile esports betting boom is partly fuelled by the US slowly regulating sports betting across the country, however esports wagering is also blossoming in many Asian countries.

Betting at mobile esports betting sites is much the same as wagering via desktop and in fact, in many cases it can be even more convenient using an app. For instance, logging into a mobile esports betting site can be as simple as using your thumbprint or facescan, when you have downloaded an esports betting app. Things like payment options are much the same on mobile and will only continue to improve, with it a widely held belief that over 60% of bets put on globally come from mobile devices, such as smartphones and tablets.

Many mobile betting sites and apps will allow you to live stream esports event on your handset via their websites, which is a pretty cool feature, given you can bet and watch in the same place. Depending on how big the betting company is that you're wagering with, will largely determine the depth in odds and variety in markets.

Key facts about esports

The global esports market isn't something to scoff at. A NewZoo market report on eSport audiences and market revenue says the industry generated USDR$325 million in 2024 and overR$892.8 million in 2024. The most recent report on the eSports industry, published in December 2024 from marketing research firm Superdata, expects industry growth exceedingR$1.6 billion this year and overR$1.8 billion in 2024.

Around the world, esports markets are worthR$328 million in Asia,R$275 million in North America andR$269 million in Europe. Esports fans spent overR$230 million on tickets, and other avenues such as merchandise and prize pool contributions. Last year, it was 292 million. In 2024, it's projected to be 345 million people watching from around the world. 40% of all esports viewers don't even play the games they watch!

The billion-dollar growth will ultimately help the sport overcome the current challenges it faces with traditional media outlets who still perceive professional video gaming in a certain lens, and it will aid the industry greatly in finding its true audience among enthusiastic stream watchers, professional gamers, casual gamers and regular sporting bettors.

The majority of esports industry's current viewership base are male Millennials (around 85%) and almost half of them (46%) are aged 18 to 25 years old. There's also a significant portion of viewers who are casual gamers who love to play and watch professionals play titles such as Hearthstone, League of Legends and Rocket League – three games which are arguably more accessible to the average gamer and viewer than the likes of Dota 2.

A campanha de Donald Trump publicamente reivindicou vitória no debate contra Kamala Harris na noite desta terça-feira, mas pelo menos alguns dos seus assessores admitiram privadamente que é improvável ele ter persuadido qualquer eleitor indeciso a romper com o assunto.

"Esta noite nos beneficiará? Não, não vai", disse um assessor de Trump.

O sentimento resumiu a situação da campanha de Trump que, com 55 dias até as eleições presidenciais dos EUA e do Reino Unido (EUA), ainda está por um momento para permitir suas linhas contra Harris romperem seus avanços nas principais pesquisas estaduais.

E foi um reconhecimento de que, apesar das esperanças deles apostas de bacará colocar o Trump feliz no palco eles ficaram irritados com ele que aparentemente não conseguiam abalar apostas de bacará fúria por ser insultado sobre seus apoiadores deixando suas manifestações mais cedo e sendo repetidamente verificado pelos moderadores.

A campanha de Trump por semanas viu o debate como uma oportunidade privilegiada para passar a um público nacional, horário nobre televisão com milhões; seus ataques contra Harris sobre políticas que eles acreditavam não ter sido entregue na cobertura da mídia mainstream. Como o raciocínio foi, mesmo que as redes de televisão se recusassem a transmitir os comícios ou comentários do Trump apostas de bacará paradas da campanha? eles seriam forçados à levá-lo ao vivo e ininterrupto quando ele tivesse uma palavra durante um debate.

Trump perdeu várias oportunidades a ataques terrestres (e finalmente discutiu com os moderadores sobre se imigrantes haitianos estavam comendo animais no Ohio).

O ponto alto que vários conselheiros de Trump observaram foi a declaração final do presidente –que foram comentários ensaiados -, na qual ele questionou por quê Harris ainda não havia promulgado suas políticas propostas como parte da agenda dos governos Biden.

Em um comunicado, os chefes de campanha do Trump Susie Wiles e Chris LaCivita ecoaram publicamente seu chefe. Os conselheiros de Trump também criticaram universalmente os moderadores do debate, as âncoras da ABC News David Muir e Linsey Davis e seus repetidos checagens das alegações mais extremas por parte dele – sugerindo que parecia uma pilha com três contra um. Ainda assim, apostas de bacará avaliação privada do debate não foi a declaração de vitória que Trump fez na Fox News enquanto visitava o salão e depois costumava justificar uma repreensão sobre se ele teria um segundo discussão contra Harris com 50 dias até as eleições. Trump disse quando pressionado pelo apresentador da Fox News Sean Hannity?
