The Independent Betting

Adjudication Service (IBAS), founded in 1998, is a 8 third party organisation that settles disputes between gambling establishments registered with IBAS and their customers in the United Kingdom.[1] The 8 organisation, which was originally part of the Sporting Life's Green Seal service, was formerly known as the Independent Betting Arbitration 8 Service.[2] The Service dropped Arbitration from its name in 2007, opting instead to use Adjudication to better reflect its role 8 after the enactment of the 2005 Gambling Act.[3]

IBAS deals with several sectors in the realm of gambling. The sectors include:

Dispute 8 involvement [ edit ]

Since its inception, IBAS has been handling the majority of gambling disputes in the UK.[4] In 2000, 8 the first year that IBAS was fully operational, approximately 800 disputes went to panel, a number which remained relatively constant 8 the following year in 2001. In 2002, the number of cases to panel rose to 1126 due to the abolishment 8 of the UK's gambling tax.[5] Again, IBAS saw another increase in cases to panel, this time as a result of 8 the 2005 Gambling Act. In 2007, nearly 1700 disputes were handled by the IBAS panel, 372 of which were of 8 the internet variety. IBAS claims to have awarded customers over £365,000 from dispute resolutions in 2007.[6] There are also instances 8 when IBAS rules in favour of the establishment, rather than the customer.[7][8]

IBAS will become involved in a dispute only after 8 the gambling establishment and the customer(s) have made attempts to resolve the issue amongst themselves. If a deadlock remains, the 8 dispute will be reviewed by

IBAS if the following conditions are met:

a resolution has not been reached to satisfaction of 8 either party involved both parties agree to the terms and conditions of involving IBAS as a third party adjudicator

If the dispute 8 merits involvement, IBAS will accept written statements describing the conflict from both parties involved. IBAS verifies the establishment has upheld & their own rules and regulations for gambling. If no rule that covers the dispute exists, IBAS will set forth its & own rule based on what would be acceptable by industry standards. Both parties are bound by IBAS's ruling.

Gambling commission [ & edit ]

One objective of the UK Gambling Commission is to ensure that all gamblers are treated fairly in accordance with & the rules and regulations established for the gambling industry. This includes disputes between customers and gambling operators.[9] By law, any & sector in the realm of gambling under the jurisdiction of the Gambling Commission must use an independent, third party to & resolve disputes.[10] Because IBAS is recognised as the third party adjudicator for nearly all bookmakers in the UK, the Gambling & Commission works closely with IBAS to reduce the number of disputes between customers and gambling operators.[11]

Case

studies [ edit ]

From & time to time, IBAS publishes a case study on one of their past rulings. These case studies provide gamblers with & examples of previous disputes to help prevent future problems between gamblers and operators. The studies focus on aspects of gambling & that are often confusing or misinterpreted. Case studies are available for several betting options offered to UK gamblers.

One football study & published stated that all football bets are based on 90 minutes, unless otherwise specified by the use of the words & outright, win trophy or another suitable phrase that leaves no doubt as to the preferred settlement criteria. Bettors need to & specify which option they desire prior to placing the intended wager, otherwise, the bet is assumed to be based on & 90 minutes of play.[12]
